COMPARATIVE BIOMETRICAL STATEMENT.
... (comparative table of amounts at risk, policies, death claims, and ratios for 1872 and 1873) ...
The Ogden Report (N. Y.) shows that the ratio of the number of policies upon which claims were paid in all companies, has advanced from 10.9 per thousand in 1872 to 11.9 in 1873. In the former year the American Popular lost 4.7, and in the latter 3.7 per thousand.
The ratio of death claims and of expenses to total income, and to total amount at risk, increasing rather than diminishing in the case of the aggregate companies, being in both years very large, contrasts strongly with the low ratio of this Company and its growing prosperity. ... practical rates ... equitable and secure.
Before the era of limitation in life insurance, the old-plan companies were shown by the reports to have done a comparatively small business, and it was, doubtless, with the large premiums they required, comparatively safe. Some, commanding large, "grubed business" from the first, with a vehemence that created amazement, and already, in common with the older companies, the beginning to experience the reaction that must have been expected from the abnormal and inflated inflation.
The comparatively small (but really large for the kind) number of policies issued by this Company is one of the best evidences of its security—the rigid adherence to well-established scientific principles, in the rating of risks, giving low premiums only to superior lives, and thus making the Company attractive to few others. It would surprise those not acquainted with the working of our plan, to know the number of applications received and the amount of labor and care expended in their examination and rating, all of which is just so much to the advantage of superior risks.
... large business is not an "assurance of safety" for if the mortality is high, ... the business, the more safety is imperiled; and while small business may not show care, large business does show carelessness. ...
Our ratio of increase has been: ...

A REPLY TO "KENNEBEC".

The following letter which we copy from the Portland Press is stated by that Journal to be from the pen of Hon. John J. Perry, of Oxford, formerly member of Congress from the Second District. It is a sharp and vigorous reply to the letter of ex-Gov. Morrill, and plainly exhibits the animus of that epistle:

To the Editor of the Press:

Will you give an old personal and political friend of your correspondent, "Kennebec," a little space in your paper for a brief reply to his communication of the 30th ult., and, upon the Senator question? This letter, from beginning to end, is a vigorous arraignment of Mr. Speaker Blaine.

In fact, the careful reader of this extraordinary communication cannot fail to see that while the author deals heavy blows at Mr. Hamlin, Mr. Blaine is the man he is really after. While we feel it would be perfectly safe to leave Mr. Blaine to "answer for himself," both special and general, to the specifications contained in this informal indictment, we cannot forbear to notice two or three extraordinary allegations prominently paraded before the public with a "flourish of trumpets" seldom indulged in by this old war horse of the "hereditary" in Maine politics.

Mr. Blaine is charged with the heinous offence of declaring himself friendly to the re-election of Senator Hamlin. And, really,—because a man is elected to serve the people of the Kennebec district in the 44th Congress"—he has no right to entertain an opinion, much less to express it publicly. When the contest was between Mr. Hamlin and Hon. Lot M. Morrill, it was all right for Mr. Blaine to shake off his "neutrality," and throw his influence in favor of the latter; but now, when a trio of candidates are in the field, "running for luck" to defeat the "old long Senator,"—why, Mr. Blaine must assume an inoffensive neutrality.

It is quite clear, from the tenor of this letter, that "Kennebec" has not forgotten that the senatorial term has its limitations; that like another old war-horse of Scripture notoriety, he "smelleth the battle afar off," and is clearing the way for another senatorial contest, two years in advance. What else does he mean when he says, "During his (Blaine's) present engagement with the Kennebec district, and near its close, a successor to his neighbor, Senator Morrill, will be chosen." And would not the veteran Senator, whose praise the Speaker now proclaims, remember his efforts, and aid and pay back in kind with usury? Is it possible that Mr. Blaine sees less clearly within his reach the tenancy of the White House, and would consent to be made Senator—not now, but when he shall leave the Kennebec district in the 44th Congress?"

Ah! here's the rub. The November elections have "possibly" thrown such a dark shadow over Mr. Blaine's prospective "tenancy of the White House" that he may be willing to become Mr. Morrill's successor.—That would be "goring my ox," therefore I will blow such a blast upon my "bugle horn" as will scatter Hamlin's "henchmen, camp-followers, and sappers and miners" into wild confusion, and while I am killing off Hamlin in 1874-5, I will prepare Mr. Blaine's "ascension robes," and give him a respectable "laying out" and burial in 1876-7. This "bugle blast" of "Kennebec" is for the succession in 1877, and it is only because the fertile imagination of the writer points to Messrs. Hamlin and Blaine, as being in the way of the Hon. Lot M. Morrill as his own successor, that this violent attack is made upon these two gentlemen.

And now a few words in reply to the charges made by "Kennebec" against Mr. Hamlin:

He is guilty of the offense of having warm personal friends. This is true, and the fact is very troublesome to those who are working to force upon us the defeat of Mr. Hamlin's ... [illegible] ... accusation to bring against any man. ... proves too much, and ... his friends. If this is an offence, it is one of which any man might be justly proud. What do these carpers want? Do they desire Mr. Hamlin to be false to those who were true to him? Is this, the high toned morality they would inaugurate among honorable men? It is also true, that Mr. Hamlin has been in public life a long series of years, and yet his enemies are forced to admit that his public and private record are comparatively without spot or blemish.

It is further said, that the caucus were "packed" for his benefit, by his friends. This is an allegation against the whole caucus system. To avoid that Mr. Hamlin, or his friends, did anything to secure candidates favorable to his election, beyond what was done by the friends of the other candidates, is a charge that can never be sustained. For proof look at Cumberland County, where the contest was mainly between Messrs. Washburn and Drummond. Had the other aspirants ... [illegible] ... growing out of the senatorial fight in this county, been extended into the other counties, the Republicans would have lost the Legislature, and lost the State.

Whether the Republican party was "inaugurated by the aid—or in spite of "King Caucus"—has nothing to do with the issue raised by "Kennebec." The caucus system has been a part of the machinery of the Republican party ever since its organization, and has been acquiesced in by all claiming membership in the party. The clamor recently raised by Mr. Hamlin's opponents, about "packing caucuses" is simply the old stale cry of "thief, stop thief!"

In reply to what "Kennebec" says about "disgraceful" scenes around the capital, when Mr. Hamlin was elected the "last time," I have only to remark that the men who engineered the fight for Mr. Morrill will gain nothing by comparing notes in relation to what really took place around the capital during that contest.

Has "Kennebec" forgotten that after both parties unanimously agreed to abide the decision of a legislative caucus, and Mr. Hamlin was fairly nominated, that it has changed and not abided to any knowledge that many of the leaders among Mr. Morrill's friends consoled a bolt, and recommended a coalition with the Democrats to defeat him? And did not the plot fail only because certain members of the Kennebec delegation refused to countenance the scheme, and would not be transferred over to the enemy?

And notwithstanding all this, when Mr. Morrill was elected the "last time," after a majority of the men—outside of Kennebec county—who supported him against Mr. Hamlin in what follows he does Mr. Hamlin great injustice. It will be remembered that the year 1856 found Samuel Wells Governor, and every department of the state government in the hands of the Democrats.

The statement of "Kennebec" relative to the organization of the Republican party and its history up to 1856 is unbelievably correct, but in what follows he does Mr. Hamlin great injustice. ... Hon. Dan. Chamberlain, the friends of Mr. Hamlin rallied around him and saved him from defeat.

A great and important Presidential election was pending, and Maine was to lead off in the fight. To find a man for standard bearer, who could lead the Republicans to victory, was the great question of the hour. All eyes were turned to Hannibal Hamlin.—He was then in the United States Senate, and had been elected as a Democrat ... [illegible] ...

before this time, fully decided to leave the old Hunker trip with whose crew, he had no sympathies, or affiliations, and fight in the Republican ranks. The state convention which nominated him was a grand ovation to his ability and honesty; and the great campaign led by him that year, which resulted in his triumphant election by about 20,000, will long be remembered as one of the most brilliant political campaigns ever had in this country.

The senatorship was most deservedly conceded to Mr. Hamlin, and he was re-elected without a dissenting voice in the party. And yet "Kennebec" well knowing all these facts, in sarcastic, sneering language, broadly asserts that Mr. Hamlin had no higher motive, in connecting himself with the Republican party, than a natural love of the "loaves and fishes." ... [illegible] ... attack, to proudly wear all the laurels he can win, by this guerrilla mode of warfare.

Prior to the last state election, the question of United States senatorship was freely and openly discussed in social circles, in public meetings and in the newspaper press. Candidates for Senators and Representatives were placed with direct reference to this issue, and the result clearly indicated a decided majority in favor of the re-election of Mr. Hamlin. So decided was this expression of the popular voice, that Mr. Hamlin's name was everywhere conceded. After the November elections Mr. Hamlin's enemies in order to make the greater noise, distributed themselves into different sections of the State, and since that time, have shouted themselves hoarse in one ordinal chorus, that "Hamlin must be defeated, or the Republican party is ruined."

The dogs of war have been let loose from their kennels, and following upon the tracks of every Senator and Representative elect, are loudly re-echoing the same doleful strains, and ... It remains to be seen whether these members elect will honorably carry out the will of their constituents, or listen to the mad-dog-cry of "Down with Hamlin!" It is a matter of perfect indifference ... [illegible] ... Do they not know that if Mr. Hamlin should be withdrawn today, that there would be one of the most disgraceful party quarrels ever known in Maine? ... [illegible] ... rush on to the track, and there is no man living that could tell who would "get the pole or win in the race."

This attempt which has been made to, connect Mr. Hamlin's name with Ben Butler and that class of politicians in the Republican party which has brought it into disrepute, is a trick worthy of the political demagogues who originated it. It is a game that never can be successfully played.

The people of Maine have known Mr. Hamlin too long, they have been too well acquainted with his public record for more than a quarter of a century to be deluded and cheated by any such false pretences. To displace a public servant who has been tried and proved, one who has been found honest and true, for the sake of experimenting with a new and untried man, is a kind of logic the loyal people of Maine do not indorse.

A large majority of the citizens of this State, representing the Republican party, at the last State election, declared in favor of the return of Mr. Hamlin to the Senate, and it remains to be seen whether these Representatives of the county Legislature will faithfully and honestly represent them, or whether they will listen to the clamor of politicians, and, like Dutrey, their constituents.

We have full faith in the men who have this important trust committed to their care and full faith that they will return to the United States Senate, the distinguished statesman the people have designated for the place.

OLD QUORUM.

THE CROPS OF MAINE.

THE YIELD FOR 1874 A FAVORABLE ONE—LOOK FOR FARMERS.

"Toby Candor," the corresponding Augusta correspondent of the Boston Journal sends that paper the following interesting statement of the result of the harvest in Maine during the present year:

The year now drawing to a close has been a prosperous one for our farmers, the harvest having been an abundant one. While other industries have felt the pressure of the times, and the prospect of a severe winter to the laboring classes is imminent, agriculture has thrived and our farmers have reason to be grateful for their condition. A new impulse has been given to agriculture in Maine, as shown by the advancement of associated dairying, with better markets and with improved facilities of railroad transportation, more attention than ever being given to the growing of crops, and the raising of stock. For the products of our farmers there is an active home demand, not only by our home market, but out of the State, in Boston and elsewhere. From all parts of the State reports of the crops of the present year have been made to the bureau of The Boston Journal in this city, together with other valuable and interesting information relating to our agricultural interests.

THE HAY CROP.

The staple crop of Maine is that of hay. The product is not only large enough for home consumption, but tens of thousands of tons are exported annually to Boston, New York and Southern ports. Waldo county sends off immense quantities of hay. The counties which give the largest productions are Kennebec, Penobscot, and Somerset, the yield of either this year not being less than 125,000 tons. In 1868 the hay crop of Maine was 1,000,000 tons; in 1869 it was 1,053,415 tons; in 1870 it was 750,000 tons, a large falling off, owing probably to the drouth in the fall of 1869. In 1871 it was 187,300 tons, an immense reduction, being less than one half the usual crop. That year was noted for the ravages of grasshoppers. In 1872 the crop was 1,070,000 tons. In 1873 the yield was one of the largest ever known, it being 1,200,000 tons, while this year there is a slight reduction, the total production being 1,300,000 tons, or more than the average. Most of the reports pronounce the crop as being of the best quality. One writer from Oxford county says that the crop in his section was hardly up to the average on account of "winter killing," although another writer in a neighboring town in the same vicinity reports the crop fully up to the average, a difference of opinion owing to the more exposed situation of some grass section than the other to the winter weather. In some localities reports are made that the crop is larger than that of last year. There is considerable amount of old hay reported on hand. During the fall good qualities have been shipped from the State, and the demand is still good for exportation. In this section bundle hay is selling at the present time for $18 and $20 per ton. Fall feed was excellent, and this with the mild weather that occurred, helps the farmer out in the wintering of stock.

INDIAN CORN.

The crop of Indian corn falls below the average. There was a decrease in the area planted, the crop was backward, and in some places it is reported an entire failure. One report says: "My corn got a good start but the unfavorable weather did not allow it to mature." Another report says: "The cold and backward spring prevented me from planting my usual breadth of corn, and what I planted proved a failure." The canning factories came up short on their supplies of sweet corn. In 1870 the corn crop was more than an average yield, the total product in the State being 1,000,000 bushels. In 1872, the product was 1,093,000 bushels, in 1873, it was 850,000 bushels, while this year the total yield was 682,000 bushels.

WHEAT.

There was a larger breadth of wheat sown this year than for many past, and as a result the yield is larger, while the quality is excellent. In some localities it is the best crop in quantity and quality that has been harvested for at least ten years, and one report says twenty years. In some towns the yield is sufficient to supply nearly one-half of the inhabitants. In 1870 the total yield in the State was 300,000 bushels; in 1871, 275,000 bushels; in 1873, 290,000 bushels; in 1873, 313,750 bushels; while this year the yield is 392,907 bushels. Owing to the cheapness of ... flour, without which has commanded a low price, the farmers in many sections have extensively ... raising should be more extensively ... in Maine.

RYE.

Rye, like buckwheat, is not extensively grown in this State. In 1870 but very little was grown; in 1871 the yield was below the average; in 1873 it numbered ... 30,000 bushels; in 1873, 36,310 bushels, while this year ... bushels.

OATS.

An increased breadth of oats was planted and the product is more than an average. In some places it is the largest crop known for years. In Androscoggin county there was a heavy yield. Writers nearly all report the product in good condition. In 1870 the yield in this State was 1,200,000 bushels; in 1871 there was a large falling off, the yield being 1,000,000 bushels, in 1872 it was 1,040,400 bushels; in 1873 it was 1,203,750 bushels, while this year it was 1,658,842 bushels.

BARLEY.

This crop is not so largely cultivated as in former years and the yield this year is below the average. In 1870 the yield commenced falling off, the total product being 500,350 bushels; in 1871 it was 500,000 bushels, in 1872 it was 570,000 bushels; in 1873 it was 420,230 bushels, while this year there is a slight increase, the total yield being 449,090 bushels. The barley that was planted this year, like the rest of the grain crops, with the exception of corn, turned out well.

POTATOES.

This crop turned out well although the rot affected some localities. Next to the hay crop, potatoes stand as the second in importance. There are a large number of varieties grown, principal among which are the Early Rose, Orono, Harrison, California Red, Early Sebec, etc. An immense number of potatoes are exported from Maine, principally from the Penobscot valley. The starch factories in the State use a great many. In 1870 the total yield was 760,000 bushels, in 1871 it was 3,000,000 bushels, in 1872 it was 2,200,000 bushels; in 1873 it was 2,197,100 bushels, while this year the total product was 3,027,071 bushels.

TOTAL PRODUCT AND VALUE OF CROPS.

The following is an estimate of the total product of the principal crops in Maine for the present year, as compared with the product of last year:

| | 1874. Tons. | 1874. Bushels. | 1873. Tons. | 1873. Bushels. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Hay, | 1,300,000 | | 1,307,000 | |

| Barley, | | 449,090 | | 420,230 |
| Potatoes, | | 3,027,071 | | 2,197,100 |

The total value of the crops this year, as compared with those of last year, is as follows:

OTHER FARM PRODUCTS.

The cash value of farm products in Maine has been reported at an average value of $14.15 per acre. This is much less than that of any other New England State, but more than the farm products of Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri, and almost twice as much as those of Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska. Farming in Maine will pay and it is gratifying to note that a check has been given to emigration. Our farmers are beginning to learn more generally that there is profit in their calling. In the production of cheese and butter there is greater interest than ever. Many new field crops are being raised, and becoming a specialty in their industry. The raising of cabbages and cucumbers for pickles is being more extensively carried on. Market gardening is on the increase. We have a report from one Kennebec farmer who realizes nearly $2,000 a year from the sales of early vegetables, strawberries, &c. More attention is being given to the raising of stock. In Aroostook county the raising of sheep is made a specialty, and elsewhere a revival in sheep husbandry is taking place. One drover in Aroostook county has bought this year in that county some 2,500 sheep for the Brighton market, while another drover in Oxford county has bought over 2000 cattle in that section for the same market. Some of the finest beeves in the country are raised in this State. Maine horses have become noted, as the turf records will attest, and more attention than ever is paid to the breeding of horses. It is estimated that there are some 25,000 to 30,000 mares used in Maine to-day for breeding purposes. There was a very good crop of cranberries raised this year, and a heavy yield in hops. The value of the blueberry crop in Washington county is estimated at $10,000. There is more attention paid to the raising of poultry, while a large revenue is derived from the sale of eggs, amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars annually. The production of honey is becoming a specialty, especially in Aroostook county, where twenty tons were gathered last year. This year the yield is less. In fruit culture greater interest is taken than ever before. The tent-caterpillars injured many trees this year. The product of fruit is below the average. In some localities there was less than half a crop. But little fruit has been shipped to Massachusetts. Our Maine apples are of a superior quality, and orchards are multiplying in number. It appears now to be settled that Maine can grow her own fruit trees of all kinds, and that there is no occasion to go out of the State for them any more. Nurseries are increasing and proving successful. Many valuable fruits are indigenous to Maine, and can be grown with profit. The annual value of her orchard products will reach nearly $1,000,000, and is increasing.

Monday afternoon, the residence of Hon. F. O. J. Smith, Deering, was surreptitiously entered, and a large amount of valuable property stolen. Among the articles taken were two silk and three other dresses, nine night dresses, a large quantity of underclothing, a box of stockings, velvet sacque trimmed with fur, gold watch, (hunter case) gold linked chain, with charm representing a Bible attached, and gold pin attached, pair of gold ear-rings, inlaid with pearls, one gold ring with amethyst, two gold bracelets, silver butter knife, ten large silver table spoons, three teaspoons, eight silver forks, one large table cloth, etc. The articles must exceed $1,000 in value. Mr. Smith offers a reward for their recovery.

THE PROCTOR-MOULTON CASE. The report of Benjamin D. Silliman, the referee in the Proctor-Moulton case, was filed Wednesday in the Clerk's office of the United States Court, Brooklyn. Mr. Silliman says: "I find that the imputations made upon and concerning the character and conduct of the plaintiff are wholly and absolutely untrue; that the defendant, by his counsel (disclaiming malice in the publication), admitted the untruth of such imputations and statements; that the plaintiff, by her counsel, thereupon expressed willingness to receive as damages any indemnity for the expenses incurred by her in the prosecution of the suit. I find, as conclusions of law, that the publication by the defendant of matter set forth in the declaration was libelous; that the plaintiff is entitled to recover damages therefor against the defendant, and I fix and determine the damages at $4375, for which sum the plaintiff is entitled to and should have judgment against the defendant." Judgment was accordingly entered by the Clerk of the Court to the above amount.

PARTY NOMINATIONS.

The Gardiner Home Journal is not, we believe, a Republican paper, and in fact we do not know exactly where it is politically. Its editor has strong convictions on the subject of accident insurance and doubtless had a policy in his pocket when he shared the Greeley smash-up in 1872; but since that disaster the paper has had no definite political ideas. It is particularly fond, however, of giving advice to the Republican party, and its newspaper exponents; probably feeling that counsel to Democrats would be thrown away. The last number of our Gardiner contemporary reached us with its insides in exceedingly bad condition and although we could perceive that it was in trouble we could hardly make out the exact nature of its difficulty. Its editorial column was much obscured by several vivid impressions of tape lines, in the intervals of which we could only discover that our attention was in some way called to an article copied from Harper's Weekly on nominations. As we could not read the article and our good friends of the Lewiston Journal seem to have been furnished with a plainer copy, we quote the reply of the latter journal as entirely appropriate and conclusive.—

An exchange thinks that some of the Republican papers would hesitate to adopt and preach the views which Geo. W. Curtis recently expressed in an article in Harper's Weekly on the binding force of regular nominations. Mr. C. says:

"The only sure way is to vote for no candidate who is not known to be worthy, either directly, or by trusty representation, and if this principle should lead to the reduction of the number of elective candidates to a very few, so much the better for the country. The great multitude of elective offices is an immense advantage to dishonest politics. Let us have a few men only elected, and hold them to a strict responsibility for the subordinates whom they appoint, and we shall have a simpler, more manageable, more economical, more efficient and infinitely purer government."

We say "amen" to that doctrine, and we do not imagine a single Republican paper in the State would dissent from the idea that a regular nomination should be supported only so far as the candidates are worthy. Where the nominees of a party convention or caucus are men of character and capacity, they should receive the support of all men who desire that the party may live to carry out certain principles in which they agree. The object of a caucus or convention is to concentrate on one set of candidates the votes of all men who desire the success of common principles. Without such concentration no party can accomplish its aims. This is the correct theory of "regular nominations," and we are very sure that Republican voters have acted on this theory as the voters of no other party ever did.

DEMOCRATIC FRUITS.

[From the Providence Journal.]

We are fast getting used to it, but really those of us who held that the war meant something, that great principles were involved and vindicated, that one side was right and the other wrong, that it was not merely a senseless conflict between sections, may be allowed to feel the blood warm a little at the proceedings in Washington, on the occasion of removing the bodies and celebrating the memory of the rebels who fell in the repulse of Early when he attempted to capture the national capital. A bishop and four clergymen, with a numerous body of pall bearers, who had served in the rebel army, and a great body of sympathizers, assisted at the conspicuous and imposing ceremonial. The orator commenced by congratulating his hearers—

"that we are permitted here, under the very shadow of the Federal Capitol, and almost within hearing of the chief magistrate of these United States, free from molestation by any political power, or hostile expression of private animosity, to perform those sad offices of sympathy and love to our fallen brethren."

Yes, "under the very shadow of the Federal Capitol," which they attempted to destroy as their sympathizing friends, the British, had done before, "almost within hearing of the chief magistrate" whose predecessor they assassinated, they celebrated the deeds of the men who had taken up arms against their country, extolled their virtue and their patriotism, justified the secession of the States, the invasion of the capital, the whole theory and practice of the rebellion, and anticipated the happy time, when, under the softening influence of Democratic success and the fraternal and virtuous principles that govern the city of New York, the whole North shall come to see the error of its ways, the crime which it committed in opposing the South, and the exceedingly false principles under which it has carried on the government.

More than this, flushed with the Democratic successes at the recent elections, they give us their compassion, and promise us, if we are penitent, almost their forgiveness. They admit that we might—some of us—have really believed that we were right; although it requires great credulity and charity on their side, and proves great ignorance as well as guilt on ours. The orator spoke of "Mr. Davis, our President." It is well-known that, in the exultation over the November elections, the extreme men of the South have proposed to give their electoral vote to Jeff Davis and to drive the election into the House of Representatives, where they hope to elect him. The oration was by Dr. Garnett, whether of medicine or of divinity, we are not assured. It was well done as a literary performance. Then came an ode by the Bishop, and of which the poetry was as execrable as the cause that it celebrated.

These are the fruits of Democratic successes. These foreshadow the results of Democratic rule, if the people are so unwise as to suffer its ascendancy.

The Bangor Commercial and the Portland Press join in quoting from Theodore Tilton's New England political ally, the Springfield Republican, its abuse of Mr. Hamlin and its recommendation of a bolt and fusion with the Democrats, concluding as follows.

"With the caucus the result is doubtful. Without it, the result ought to be certain. It can be made absolutely certain if the right man can be persuaded to enter the lists against Mr. Hamlin. The name of this man is John A. Peters."

If we know anything of the character of Judge Peters, he will neither feel complimented by such championship, nor by the suggestion that he could under any circumstances be used as an instrument in breaking up the great party which has so freely bestowed its honors upon him, and which only failed to reelect him when he positively declined a longer Congressional service. It is unfortunate that public men cannot protect themselves from the annoying attempts at cajolery by those who coarsely reviled them, and who only change their tune for base purposes. And this recalls the pretended indignation of the Press at the intimation that it would favor anything like a bolt. Many people will think there must be some motive in copying, first from the Portland Advertiser and then from the Springfield Republican, the suggestion that the Democrats should be called in to decide the Senatorial contest; but perhaps the Press thinks an open declaration now for a bolt would impair its "influence" with the Republican members of the Legislature. At any rate we should like to inquire whether a meeting of persons in sympathy with the Press was not held in Portland a short time ago at which one conclusion arrived at was to have every member of the Legislature supposed to be unfavorable to Mr. Hamlin interviewed and to ascertain how many would consent to bolt? And it would also be interesting to know whether the Press was or was not represented at that meeting! In the case of affirmative answers to the above we should like to know whether the programme was carried out, how it succeeded, and whether the Press is now working in harmony with such a project? Having taken the Springfield Republican into its counsels we may naturally expect to find the Press shortly embracing the N. Y. Tribune which is so earnestly persuading it to denounce the caucus and make an open fight against the Republican party.

THE PENOBSCOT INDIANS.

OFFICIAL REPORT OF THE AGENT.

The report of the agent of the Penobscot tribe of Indians, Mr. Geo. F. Dillingham, indicates that the condition of that tribe does not differ materially from that of former years. During the year the total expenditures for the tribe has been $3,410 00, and the total receipts (by warrant) $3,410.00. The largest expenditures have been for the support of the sick and infirm ($1,839 33) and for fuel ($1,683.40.) The fund arising from leases of shores belonging to the tribe and the special appropriations of the Legislature amounts to $5,793 85, which has been disbursed as follows:—For support of schools $400; salaries of Governor, Lieutenant-Governor and priest, $180; paid to members of the tribe, under chap. 297, Laws of 1873, $1,631 0-; balance remaining, $545.83.

This is the first year that the above named law has, or could have, a practical operation, and the result has proved it to be highly beneficial and of great assistance to the tribe,—perhaps more especially so this year on account of the great depression in business enterprises, and the consequent small demand for labor in lumbering operations, which usually furnish a large part of the Indians' employment.

The schools taught appear to have been in all respects conducted to the general satisfaction of the tribe, interested in them respectively.

The agent has erected a schoolhouse at Olamon Island, sufficiently large to accommodate all the scholars in that vicinity, and has repaired the ell of the parsonage. The crops raised by the Indians have been rather below the average, on account of inability to commence farming operations in the early spring and lack of sufficient manure, by which latter want the land is being exhausted. The physical, social and sanitary condition of the tribe presents no material change. Their labor has not been in great demand, and consequently low prices have prevailed. In the sale of baskets, toy canoes, &c., they have met with better success, and the demand upon them for fancy wares has called into exercise their inventive faculties. The amount of the wood bill has been very large on account of the lack of wood lots and the absence of saw mills.

The agent thinks some police arrangements should be made to prevent the disturbances at Indian dances occasioned by liquor carried there by the whites.

The agent suggests to the Legislature the propriety of purchasing the old field notes of Lord Alford, who surveyed the islands in the Penobscot river, and which can be bought probably for less than $100.

In its reference to the Republican party in this State the Maine Farmer evidently thinks that "the tail should waggle the dog." But the dog may have some notion about the matter.

THE RAILROADS. We clip the following from the Portland Press:

On the best authority, we are enabled to state that the reports relative to a quarrel between the Eastern and Maine Central Railroad directors, and that the former owes the latter a large sum of money, are not true. The Eastern has paid promptly "all adjusted balances and is not chargeable with withholding a dollar due the Maine Central." From the same authority we learn that "it may not be denied that an effort is being made by the managers of the different railroad interests centering in Portland to harmonize those interests, with a view of affording the public every business facility in their power, and at the same time furnish more favorable results to stockholders." Such was the object of the meeting Wednesday evening."

ANOTHER HABEAS CORPUS FOR TWEED. The counsel of "Boss" Tweed have not given up the fight yet. On Tuesday Mr. Field presented to Mr. Justice Lawrence a petition from William M. Tweed, asking release from prison on the following grounds:—

That the court from which the warrant and process purport to have been issued had no jurisdiction or power to take cognizance of or to try the alleged misdemeanors mentioned in the said pretended warrant or process; that the jury was not impaneled according to the law of the land, and had no jurisdiction to try the supposed offenses; that the judgment of the court was absolutely void for want of jurisdiction, that the pretended trial and conviction of the petitioner was for one misdemeanor only, for which no more than one year's imprisonment and a fine of $250 could by law be pronounced, and for such misdemeanor and conviction petitioner has already been imprisoned more than one year, and has paid the fine of $250: that if the one year's imprisonment was lawful, which the petitioner denies, each and every sentence of said Court, whereby petitioner was condemned to any further or other fine, was and is void, that the warrant or process does not conform to the alleged judgment of the Court of Oyer and Terminer, and is not warranted by the same.

After taking some little time for consideration, Mr. Justice Lawrence granted the writ, making it returnable at 11 A. M. on Friday in the Court of Oyer and Terminer.

The Alta California says: The Nevada bullion product last year was $31,000,020; in the first six months of the present year, $15,073,458, and the last half of the year will exceed that sum. For next year, or 1875, under existing facts, the bullion product of Nevada cannot be estimated under $40,000,000, while California will turn out its usual quantity, $20,000,000. There is then before this community the positive certainty of an increased per cent. of capital and loanable funds beyond that of any precedent in this or any other country.

LOW PRICES IN NEW YORK. A New York correspondent of the Boston Journal writes:

The panic has done one thing, it has brought everything down. For twenty years dry goods have not been as low as now. At our large clothing stores one can buy an entire suit of clothes for the price paid for an overcoat a year ago. As men in the trade express it: "There is no price for anything!" The importers of holiday gifts on Maiden Lane are selling their goods at cost prices, with few buyers, as none but the rich can afford that class of merchandise.

GARABALDI. Garabaldi has written a letter in regard to the contributions raised and promised for his benefit. He says: "I never was poor, since I have always known how to adapt myself to my circumstances from the time when, being in the service of the South American Republics, I carried a single change of shirts under the saddle of my horse to that in which I became the Dictator of the Two Sicilies," and it was only through the indiscretion of others that his so-called poverty was proclaimed to the world. He then refers to the generous gifts showered upon him—Mr. Anderson of New York heading the list of donors—and closes as follows:

"All this suffices to make me rich, and to place me in a position where I ought to decline any further subscriptions, and especially from those associations of workingmen, of whose sympathy I am justly proud, but which, coming from those whose necessities are greater than mine, I consider it a sin to accept.

It remains for me, then, to express my most profound gratitude to my benefactors.

G. GARIBALDI."

The friends of Maj. A. H. S. Davis feel very confident of his election to the office of Secretary of State, for which he is a candidate. He has many warm friends throughout the State and would undoubtedly make an excellent officer.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP,

SCHENCK'S SEAWEED TONIC,

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS,

Are the only medicines that will cure Pulmonary Consumption. Frequently medicines that stop a cough will occasion the death of the patient; they lock up the liver, stop the circulation of the blood, hemorrhage follows, and in fact, they clog the action of the very organs that caused the cough. Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia are the causes of two-thirds of the cases of Consumption. Many persons complain of a dull pain in the side, constipation, coated tongue, pain in the shoulder-blade, feelings of drowsiness and restlessness, the food lying heavily on the stomach, accompanied with acidity and belching up of wind. These symptoms usually originate from a disordered condition of the stomach or a torpid liver. Persons so affected, if they take one or two heavy colds, and if the cough in these cases be suddenly checked, will find the stomach and liver clogged, remaining torpid and inactive, and almost before they are aware the lungs are a mass of sores, and ulcerated, the result of which is death. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup is an expectorant which does not contain opium or anything calculated to check a cough suddenly. Schenck's Seaweed Tonic dissolves the food, mixes with the gastric juices of the stomach, aids digestion and creates a ravenous appetite. When the bowels are costive, skin sallow, or the symptoms otherwise of a bilious tendency, Schenck's Mandrake Pills are required. These medicines are prepared only by

He [illegible] that the three Commissioners be [appointe]d by the President instead of by the [illegible].
Mr. [illegible] responded contending that no [illegible] of local self government is violated [illegible] there never was intended that there should be any local government, the real government of the District being vested in Congress.
[Several] amendments were offered and re[jected].
Mr. Morton moved to strike out the clause [providing] the Board of Commissioners to be [appoint]ed by the President, by and with the [advice] and consent of the Senate, and insert [in] the stead a clause requiring said Commissioners to be elected by the qualified [voter]s of the District.
During the discussion Mr. Hamlin called up the bill to amend the act entitled an act to promote the development of the mining resources of the United States, approved May 10, 1872, which was passed. It provides [that] the fifth section of that act be amended [so] that where a person or company has or may run a tunnel for the purpose of developing a lode owned by said person or company the money so expended in said tunnel shall be considered as expended on said lode whether located prior to or since the passage of said act, and such person or company shall not be required to perform work on the surface of said lode or lodes in order to hold the same, as required by said act.
Pending the discussion of the District bill the Senate at 4.10 went into Executive session and at 4.[illegible] the doors were re-opened.
Senator Logan introduced a joint resolution providing that so much of the act entitled an act reorganizing the several staff corps of the army, approved June 23, 1874 as applied to the contract surgeons be and is hereby suspended until the first day of February, 1875. Ordered to be printed.

HOUSE.
Mr. Orth of Indiana from the joint committee on the reception of King Kalakaua reported a recommendation for his presentation to the House to-morrow. Agreed to.
The House went into Committee of the Whole on the legislative appropriation bill.
Nothing of public interest occurred in the consideration of the bill until the paragraph is reached which makes provision for the Bureau of Education. A proposition to increase the clerical force of the Bureau was made by Mr. Monroe of Ohio, and was advocated by himself, Mr. Hoar, of Mass., and Townsend of Pennsylvania and opposed by Messrs. Frye of Maine and Cox, of New York. The latter avowed his hostility to the whole system of "bureaucracy," and declared that all those bureaus which had no warrant in the Constitution would be abolished by the next Congress.
Mr. Garfield of Ohio favored the increase proposed by Mr. Monroe, and defended the Bureau of Education as a necessary instrument for obtaining and publishing education[al] [statis]tics. If the Democratic party proposed to begin its new career of power by putting out the eyes of the Government, by destroying the methods of obtaining intelligence as to the condition of the people. If the Government was to enter on a system which builds penitentiaries and was to take no steps to get information as to whether it was not possible by a better system to avoid the system of penitentiaries, then, he thought, it was well they should have timely notice of it.
Mr. Willard of Vermont argued against the Bureau of Education as unwarranted interference with a matter which the people themselves could and did take better care of, and declared that there was no more reason for a Bureau of Education or Bureau of Agriculture than for a bureau of surgery, or a bureau of boots and shoes. Finally, Mr. Monroe's proposition was rejected.
Mr. Hereford, of West Virginia, moved to strike out the whole appropriation for the Bureau of Education, and argued against the whole system of centralization.
Mr. Dawes, of Massachusetts, introduced a bill making provision for the payment of the sinking fund referred to by the Committee on Ways and Means.
The House at 4 o'clock adjourned.

VICKSBURG.—NEW ORLEANS.

A STATEMENT OF THE VICKSBURG BAR ABOUT "ORDERLY, GRAVE, RESPECTABLE CITIZENS" AND WHAT THEY SOUGHT
NEW YORK, Dec. 17. The Herald prints the following:—"Vicksburg, Miss., Dec. 17. To the Editor of the Herald: At a meeting of the Vicksburg Bar of this date, it was resolved that the following be telegraphed to you: We pronounce the letter of Judge Geo. F. Brown embraced in the telegram of Gov. Ames of this State, a gross misrepresentation of facts. There was no organized mob of several hundred men, but a peaceful, orderly assembly of grave, respectable citizens, seeking the due observance of right. No violence to any one was offered or threatened, no menace, indignity or disrespect was offered to the court, nor was there any interference with its business or necessity for its adjournment. Upon the resignation of the Sheriff the Judge has the power, under our law to appoint another person to perform the duties of the office, and it was our purpose to wait on him in a body to request him to do so and proceed with the business of the court on the very morning the attack on the city occurred. We refer to statements of prominent citizens already given to the country, as being a correct exposition of the facts of the late occurrences in this city and county.

A CONSERVATIVE CLAIM AND THREAT
WASHINGTON, Dec. 17. Louisianians who arrived here last night say the Conservative party has so clearly elected a majority of the Legislature State and other candidates at the recent election that the Conservatives are anxiously awaiting the report of the Returning Board which they distrust and such is the feeling among them that should the Board reject any of the returns with the view of giving the ascendency to the Republicans the Conservatives would undertake to right themselves by force of arms.
AN EARLY INVESTIGATION OF AFFAIRS BY THE HOUSE ELECT COMMITTEE [illegible]
WASHINGTON, Dec. 17. The following telegram was received at the Executive Mansion yesterday evening and was by direction of the President referred to Speaker Blaine:
New Orleans, La., Dec. 16.—I respectfully ask that you will use your influence to secure the early departure for Louisiana of the [committee] appointed yesterday. I am confident that an investigation thorough and complete will vindicate the policy of your administration, will strengthen the Republican party and will place the Government of Louisiana in a more just light before the country. The presence of the committee here at this juncture will also go far to secure order and help contribute in some degree to bring about a solution of our difficulties.
(Signed) W. P. KELLOGG.
A CONSERVATIVE ACCOUNT OF MATTERS BEFORE THE RETURNING BOARD
NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 17. The Returning Board has been trying the [illegible] chief clerk, Campbell, charged with tampering with the returns and testimony, but they could not prove it. Mr. Whitaker presented evidence proving that the signatures to the Sabine Parish returns were forged. The Board has decided on the returns from the 23 parishes besides the 1st and 2d Congressional Districts and promulgated them. These give in the House 43 Radicals and [illegible] Conservatives.

KENTUCKY
THE CASE OF JONES, THE ALLEGED INELIGIBLE CLERK OF APPEALS CLERK
LOUISVILLE, Dec. 17. A special to the Courier-Journal says that Judge McNamara of the Frankfort Circuit Court to-day decided in the case of Thomas C. Jones acting Clerk of the Kentucky Court of Appeals that the decision of the State Contesting Board vacating the office was incompetent and void. It will be remembered that Jones was declared ineligible by the State Board because he accepted a challenge to fight a duel. Therefore the Governor declared the office vacant and ordered a special election to fill the vacancy, notwithstanding which Jones has since continued to exercise the functions of the office, and was a few days ago presented before the Circuit Court for usurpation. His attorneys entered a demurrer to the jurisdiction of the Contesting Board, and the demurrer was sustained. The District Attorney has appealed to the Court of Appeals.

THE ROSS CHILD
A SALOON KEEPER'S STORY—BELIEF THAT THE BOY WAS KILLED
NEW YORK, Dec. 17. A saloon keeper of Green Point has recognized the bodies of Mosher and Douglass. The latter, he said, had boarded with him quite a long time when he (Douglass) was working for a Brooklyn horse railroad. On the 1st of March, Mosher came there, and the two held so many long conversations in whispers that they attracted the attention of other patrons. Both Mosher and Douglass went away to Philadelphia about March 10th, Douglass saying he was going to get a better job. Police Inspector Walling thinks he will find Charlie Ross before Sunday. A detective who is now on the case says Mosher was hired to kidnap the child by a woman then living in Philadelphia, soon after the abduction the woman quit the city and is now living in Twenty seventh street. He says that Mosher called on her there and endeavored to collect his hire, but was turned out with a threat of exposure. Several detectives here think Mosher killed the Ross boy within the past two months.

[illegible] counsel in ten allegations similar to the petition as to the sentence being expired, the illegality of the subsequent sentences imposed, the want of jurisdiction in the court which tried him, and that the jury were not impanneled according to law. His counsel suggested that they be allowed to state what their proofs are, and then hand them in and have the court pass upon them, have a writ of certiorari on the 23d inst. and get the case to the Court of Appeals on the first Monday in January. They wanted to prove that the indictment was on the complaint of Mr. Peckham, and the record of conviction was altered from the verdict as given by the jury, and that a motion to correct it was denied. The District Attorney was required to consider whether he would demur or join issue. The case was adjourned to Tuesday, and the prisoner remanded to the custody of the warden. The prisoner looks much improved in health.

A PORTRAIT OF THE LATE MR. LYNDE. We inspected yesterday, at the photograph rooms of O. D. Marston, a superb portrait of the late proprietor of this journal, John H. Lynde Esq., just completed by Marston for the Masonic brethren of the deceased, who united in subscribing funds to procure the picture to be hung in their Lodge Room in this city. The figure, which is shown in vignette, is somewhat larger than life, as it is to be hung in a lofty hall, and is enclosed in a massive gilt frame of due proportions. The portrait is a photograph enlarged from an excellent negative taken by Mr. Lunall, and finished in crayon. As a likeness it seems to us perfect, the expression being full of the animation and energy which characterized the original in life. In the elegant Hall, to whose construction he devoted such earnest effort, this picture will form a handsome memorial of the esteem in which their Past Grand Master was held by the brethren of the Order to which he was strongly attached. And such a testimonial from his society associates can but prove gratifying to the family and friends of the departed. The portrait will remain on exhibition for several days at Marston's rooms before being placed in position at the Masonic Hall.

PENOBSCOT POULTRY. The fourth annual exhibition of the Penobscot County Poultry Association, at City Hall, closed last evening after a three days' session. The entries and awards have already been published. The number of visitors exceeded that of last year, while the variety and quality of the fowls displayed excels any previous show in this section of the State. The bad weather of the first day interfered with the entries and arrangements somewhat, while the Main street fire not only drew public attention from the exhibition, but also prematurely cooked the Poultry Supper which was to have been given at the Harriman House on Wednesday evening. The hall has not been visited by as many people as could have been hoped, but the officers of the society deserve great credit for the success which has rewarded their efforts. One award, omitted in yesterday's report, was No 10 of the Special Premiums, an apple-parer, corer and slicer, offered by Hon. Fred Atwood, of Winterport, for the best male bird, counting the most points, owned outside of Bangor and in Penobscot county, awarded to George D. Stockwell, of Eddington, for a black Brahma cock, counting ninety points. This morning the hen convention breaks up, and the garrulous delegates return to their respective hen-coops.

AMUSEMENTS
THE AMATEUR MINSTRELS
When one attends a performance to criticise and discover that he has no time for anything but enjoyment, he can understand the position of representatives of the press who were at Norombega Hall last evening at the entertainment given by the Amateur Minstrels. There was a crowded house comprising one of the largest and most fashionable [illegible] known in the amusement annals of the city, and from first to last their appreciation of the excellent programme was manifested in laughter and applause. With malice aforethought and palpable the performers were evidently determined to convince their friends that a colored man was better than a white man, and had burnt cork been the normal complexion of all those on the stage their purpose would have been accomplished.
The curtain rose at 8 o'clock, and the score of [illegible] on the stage in dress coats, white pants, button hole bouquets, curly wigs and burnt cork a la fifteenth Amendment were given a reception that was alike suggestive of pleasant recollections of last spring's entertainment and anticipations for that which was to come. The company included the following gentlemen, all well known in business and social circles:
Messrs. J. F. M. Sanford, Geo. S. Farrington, [illegible], Frank W. Cram, C. B. Wyman, Geo. [illegible] Moody, Eugene M. Hersey, Charles D. [illegible], Frank Dwinel, John H. Babb [illegible] assisted by Mr. M. H. Andrews and the following members of his Orchestra: [illegible] McGowen, A. F. Harlow, [illegible], Horace Woods, William Crombie, [illegible] McGregor and Geo. F. [illegible].
The performance which was divided into three parts was [illegible]. The following is the PROGRAMME.
[illegible]
The [illegible] was given in a spirited manner, followed by [illegible] from Mr. Hersey [illegible]. Sunny Days [illegible] was a charming song composed and written for Mr. Moody [illegible] and was received with favor. It possesses all the elements of popularity, and should be published. Shine On, by Mr. Farrington [illegible] by Mr. Flowers, were all well given. [illegible] by Mr. Clark [illegible]. The first part was interspersed with new jokes and local hits between each number and concluded with a song by Mr. Sanford. In response to an encore the company repeated their last chorus.
Part Second opened with an overture "The Bandit [illegible]" by the Orchestra. "My Father Sold Charcoal" was an Irish character song and dance, by Mr. Babb in which his make up, acting and singing were all so good as to win an encore. Mr. Wyman presented "A Few Minutes with the Banjo" in which he gave an amusing dissertation on the effects of sound, followed by practical illustrations which resulted in an encore for the third time. Mr. Dwinel has an excellent negro dialect and his song and dance were full of the essence of old Virginia—not to mention his father's "plantations" in the construction of which several centuries are understood to have had contracts. Mr. Sanford in a bone solo, showed himself remarkably proficient making them rattle in a manner excelled by few professionals, in deed, in his response to the encore he received, he performed a variety of difficult and dexterous changes that have never been equalled here. Messrs. Hersey and Babb gave the old favorite German dialect song "Little Frauds," in costume. This proved so acceptable that they were obliged to give another German song as an encore. Mr. Clark created a sensation in the character song, "Col. Jones of the N. G. S. N. Y.," in which he looked, acted and sung to perfection the dashing officer in a magnificent uniform. In response to an encore, he gave another military song in his best style. Following this came the Parnassian Warblers, not down on the programme, composed of the Messrs. Dwinel, Flowers, Wyman and Sanford, in which both their costumes and voices produced an effect that many an artist might envy in vain. Mr. Flowers gave a harmonica solo, being a melange of popular airs, which developed latent qualities in the instrument of the most pleasing character. A banjo trio by the Messrs. Sanford, Dwinel and Wyman furnished an agreeable termination to the second part. The finale of the evening was an original sketch, "cast to the strength of the company," entitled "The Lost Child, or, Have You Seen the Elephant?" In this there was lots of amusement for the performers, as well as the audience, Mr. Hersey and Captain Small taking leading parts, Messrs. Babb and Flowers appearing as the "baby elephant," assisted by others, including Master Babb, an amateur pugilist who succeeded in getting "bounced."
The curtain fell at 10 30 o'clock, the audience having given no evidence of weariness. The music, under the direction of Mr. Andrews, was enjoyable from first to last, the vocal and dramatic parts were given with a vigor and vivacity that kept every seat occupied throughout the evening, the costumes were appropriate and in good taste, and the stage business, under the management of Captain Small, passed off smoothly and expeditiously, while the general business details were successfully looked after by Mr. Roberts.
A common desire expressed by the audience as they retired was that the Amateur Minstrels should give another entertainment this week. A matinee performance on to-morrow afternoon, with a low price of admission to all parts of the house, would certainly crowd it to its utmost capacity.

CARSON'S EXAMINATION
THE TESTIMONY TAKEN BEFORE JUSTICE SEWELL, IN OLDTOWN, ON WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY—CARSON IS HELD FOR TRIAL, AND COMMITTED TO JAIL IN THIS CITY.
George Carson, of Milford, charged with the murder of Nehemiah Brawn, on the 29th of July last and who was arrested on Monday of this week, was brought before Trial Justice Geo. T. Sewall, at Oldtown, Wednesday forenoon for preliminary examination, which commenced at 10 30 o'clock. County Attorney Jasper Hutchings conducted the examination of witnesses, and George P. Sewall appeared for Carson.
THE WOUNDS ON THE BODY.
The first witness was Howard Brawn, the complainant, son of the man supposed to have been murdered. Substantially he testified that there was a wound over the right eye of his father, when the body was found, about an inch and a half in length by nearly an inch in width. He also testified to two other smaller wounds—one on the head and the other on the neck.
Dr. Albion P. Folsom, who examined the body of Brawn at the time of the inquest, testified to a wound over Brawn's right eye, cutting through the skin and adipose tissues down to the muscles, which were not injured. He thought the wound must have been inflicted with a blunt instrument. The blow, of itself he did not think sufficient to have caused death but unconsciousness.
Joseph Doe, sexton of the town of Milford, helped take Brawn from the water upon the requisition of Coroner Wilson. He found five cents, a piece of a pipe and a jackknife in his pocket, all of which were given to Brawn's son. He then removed the clothes and washed the body. Upon examination no scar was found on the back of the head and the jury were sent for to make another examination but they being satisfied with the previous examination did not come and the body was placed in the coffin. [illegible] and a piece of skin from the upper part of the rim of his ear was knocked off. He saw no other wounds on any part of the person.
Thomas McMann's testimony included [nothing] of importance.
Deacon William Bosworth carried the coffin over to Milford. Saw the body washed, and helped place it in the coffin. Saw a bad wound over the right eye. After the body was washed this wound bled freely [illegible].
THE TESTIMONY OF [illegible]
Mrs. Cordelia Doherty, who lives close by Carson was the next witness, upon whose statements the arrest was made. She testified that she went on the Sunday in July with Mr. and Mrs. Carson, Mr. Brawn, two of Carson's children, two of Thomas McMann's children and her own little girl on a fishing and berrying excursion. They started about 9 o'clock in the forenoon. Brawn and Carson were quarrelling and disputing about various matters all the way up river. While on the way up the children became frightened by the disputes between the two men and by the overloading of the boat, and they were landed on the Milford side of the river. The two men and women then continued on their way up river and in passing through a narrow place in the current between two ledges Carson while dragging the boat by the chain, cut one of his fingers on a rock and it was bound up by Mrs. Doherty. She was sitting near the middle of the boat while performing this operation, Brawn in the stern. [illegible] and the blood that exuded fell outside the boat. After this dispute arose about $15 which Brawn said he had lent Carson, to which Carson responded in words not necessary to quote, that he guessed that Brawn had obtained his pay from Mrs. Carson. Brawn denied having had any improper relations with Mrs. Carson. Mrs. Carson said if she were a man, [illegible] several times called on Carson to kill Brawn. Then Carson said to Brawn "this is the last time you will ever sail with me!" Then he said to his wife "Jane did you bring what I told you to?" not mentioning the article to which he referred. [illegible] when she finally replied "Yes." Then he asked his wife where it was, to which she replied "Under the board," referring to the board running lengthwise of the bottom of the boat. [illegible] and as an excuse for looking under the board without attracting suspicion, she dropped her handkerchief then while stooping to pick it up she felt and looked under the board, where she found an axe. She wanted to put ashore, but they refused to let her land. Subsequent to this some little fishing was done by the men. On the return down river the boat was landed on the Milford side and the two women got out and started to walk down home along the bank of the river, and had gone but a short distance when she heard a cry and looked around. Carson was standing in the boat, with his axe in his hand, and she heard Brawn say "Carson don't murder me with that axe! If I had my other hand I would not be afraid of you and the axe too!" Upon that, Carson drew the axe and struck Brawn over the right eyebrow, as Brawn was attempting to rise. Brawn dropped over into the water falling on the Milford side of the boat and consequently on his left side. When he went over he said, "Oh, my sons!" Upon cross examination Mrs. Doherty stated that he exclaimed "You have killed me. Oh, my sons!" During this affair the boat was coming down, and in the middle of the river. When she looked back she called out to Carson to save him, and said to Mrs. Carson that Brawn was murdered. Carson then rowed ashore, and he was saying that he would be blamed for murdering Brawn, afterwards changing this, saying that he would be blamed for drowning him. Brawn was coming down the stream at first, until he had reached deep water, when he sank. Mrs. Doherty sat down on a rock and could not move, all strength was gone. She said to Mrs. Carson "There is poor Brawn murdered by your husband." Mrs. Carson drew a knife on her, and said "Now Mrs. Doherty, I will smash your brains or cut your throat, if you ever speak of what you saw done." Mrs. Doherty was forced to swear five times that she would not tell of what she had seen, which she did with an oath. She was also told by Mrs. Carson that if she ever revealed the secret, there was some one who would take her life. She has since been threatened by Carson and his wife four times that if she did not keep the secret, they would have her heart's blood. About a fortnight after the murder, she went to Carson's to borrow an axe, and there she saw the same axe with which Carson struck Brawn, still spotted with blood. She told Mrs. Carson that the axe was covered with blood, and Mrs. Carson said it was rust. In her cross-examination no new facts were elicited, and no contradictions of importance were made, save that she had testified differently at the coroner's inquest. This was done for two reasons, as she did not consider that her testimony at that time was under oath, as she said, "So help me Dan," instead of "So help me God," and the other reason for falsely testifying was the fear of losing her life.
OTHER TESTIMONY.
Emma Carson, ten years old, daughter of Carson, was the next witness examined. She said that at the time the boat was returning from up river—she having previously been landed with the other children, she was on the roof of the shed formerly attached to the old steam-mill, which was half a mile distant from the scene. She saw the boat [illegible] land, and while at the shore Brawn fell over the side and disappeared. Her father did what he could to save the drowning man, reaching over into the water. Her mother and Mrs. Doherty were near by. She saw no axe in the boat, did not see her father strike Brawn, he was near the stern of the boat when he fell in, while her father was near the middle. She had never seen any large knife at home, nothing larger than a jack knife or table knife. She testified to the same facts upon cross examination.
Deputy Sheriff H. Lancaster testified to the presence of large drops of blood on the stern end of the board in the bottom of the boat, which were not dried [illegible] on the next day after the occurrence.
At 3 o'clock the examination was adjourned till yesterday forenoon.
THURSDAY FORENOON
The examination of witnesses was resumed at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. Tobias Grant testified that Carson told him that when Brawn's body should be found, there would be bruises or gashes on his head, as he heard Brawn when he struck the bottom.
TESTIMONY OF CARSON'S SON
George Carson Jr., aged fifteen years, was the next witness examined. He gave the general facts in regard to the excursion very much as his sister had done on the previous day. In several important details his memory was at fault, while in others he was perfectly sure that his recollection was correct. In answer to a question he said, that neither his father nor mother had a large knife in their possession—"not at my knowledge" as he expressed it. The blood in the boat was caused by the bleeding of his nose which was a frequent [illegible] with him. It bled nearly all the way coming back in the boat. Both his face and shirt were very bloody. He had no handkerchief with him and did not think he washed his face. The shirt was shown by his father at the coroner's inquest eight days after although it had been soaking in water preparatory to being washed. Coming down on the boat, [illegible]. He was [illegible] times asked by Mr. Hutchings if he ever saw an axe in the boat, or saw one there to which he replied in the negative each time.
CARSON'S WIFE EXAMINED
Mrs. Mary Jane Carson, wife of the [accused], had been married twenty four years. Had lived in any number of towns in this State since that time—should think she had moved fifty or sixty times. Had lived in Milford since last May. On the day of the excursion in July when Brawn was drowned he came to their house after 6 o'clock and she got him some breakfast. Carson and Brawn had been working together the previous week [illegible] and had talked about making this Sunday trip on the river. They were friends, and she never knew them to have any trouble at all. [illegible] It was 7 o'clock or after when they [illegible]. While in the next room doing her chamberwork she overheard Brawn tell Carson he had two bottles of liquor, and wanted Carson to go with [him]. It was after 8 o'clock when her three children, Brawn, Mrs. Doherty and her little girl and the two McMann girls started for the boat and Carson went to the tavern for liquor. Carson and Brawn had drank at the house before starting. She carried a basket and dippers for picking strawberries. George carried the baby in his arms to the boat. She had not been to the boat previously that morning. Brawn sat in the stern of the boat; Carson got into the bow [illegible]. Carson and Mrs. Doherty hauled the boat by this place. Brawn stayed in the boat and used the paddle to steer it. [illegible] Carson hurt his finger somehow and Mrs. Doherty did it up for him. Both of them were out of the boat at the time. She did not see the finger bare at that time nor for some days after, till she had occasion to do it up again. After passing the rapids they all got in and went up to [illegible]. She and the children got out and went to look for berries but found none. Carson fished for a few minutes in a small stream. During this time Brawn and Mrs. Doherty were alone in the boat. Carson, Brawn and Mrs. Doherty drank going up in the boat. [illegible] She saw two empty pint flasks in the bottom of the boat [illegible] which she threw out of the boat. She saw Carson drink but once going up. Brawn did not get out of the boat while at [illegible]. Mrs. Doherty and Brawn were [illegible] all the way up, as they always did when they had been drinking. Mrs. Doherty said that Brawn had told lies about her, to the effect that he had given her money in pay for improper favors. During the spat Mrs. Doherty struck at Brawn with an oar and bit her boy. McMann's children and Mrs. Doherty's girl landed on the way up and got home about 1 o'clock. On the way back the children were put out at Leed's landing. By this time everybody was pretty well [illegible] and the boat was going every which way. She got out with the children at the upper end of the landing, and went nearly to the road with them. Was gone perhaps 20 minutes and then got into the boat again at the lower end of the landing. When they reached the rapids Brawn wanted to get out and they all landed. Carson and Brawn went into the woods together; were gone five or ten minutes. Both were pretty drunk; everything was pleasant between them,—never knew them to quarrel. Brawn said he should be captain the rest of the way home. Mrs. Carson said she would walk home if he were to have charge of the boat. Mrs. Doherty called to her to come back, after she was some little distance away, and turning, she saw Brawn staggering to the rear of the boat. When he went to sit down, he fell into the water on the side towards the shore. Carson was sitting in the bow, nearly sideways to Brawn, working on his pipe. He had no axe in his hand, and was not near Brawn. Brawn did not speak or cry out when he fell in, but smiled at Mrs. Carson. She screamed and Carson jumped backward to save Brawn, and fished around in the water at the stern, but did not reach Brawn. She then pushed off the boat with Carson in it in order that he might save Brawn. She then ran for help, and found several men and boys at the mill, who went to the river. Mrs. Doherty was standing on the bank of the river during the occurrence and said nothing. The further testimony of Mrs. Carson was in relation to their final landing of the boat, and the getting home of Carson. She also gave the details of recent quarrels with Mrs. Doherty. In answer to questions, said that about a month ago Carson brought home a large butcher knife from up country. It was a second-hand knife, and had been lent to Oliver Madden to kill a pig. Previous to a month ago she had no such knife in her possession. She saw no axe in the boat, and had no knife with her of any sort, while on the excursion. The cross-examination elicited no additional statements of importance.
AN IMPORTANT WITNESS
Nellie White, aged 12 years daughter of Benjamin White, was the last witness called. Her testimony was given in a manner that convinced everyone of its truthfulness. She saw the boat when it landed and saw the boy George Carson carry an axe from the boat to his father's house. She did not notice what part of the boat he took it from.
Thomas McMann, who was recalled, did not remember to have been near the boat when it landed. On the strength of the evidence which had been presented, Carson was bound over to appear at the February term and was brought to the jail in this city by Deputy Sheriff Lancaster.

POSTHUMOUS.

BY HENRY A. BEERS.

Put them in print?
Make one more Hint
In the ages furrowed rock? No, no!
Let his name and his verses go.
These idle scraps, they would but wrong
His memory, whom we honored long,
And men would ask: "Is this the best?"
Is this the whole his life expressed?"
Haply he had no care to tell
To all the thoughts which flung their spell
Around us when the night grew deep,
Making it seem a loss to sleep,
Freeing the low, dingy room
To some high auditorium.
And when we parted homeward, still
They followed us beyond the hill.
The heaven had brought strange stars to sight,
Opening the map of lated night
And the wide silence of the snow,
And the dark whispers of the pines,
And those keen frosts that glittered slow
Along the Zodiac's wintry signs,
Seemed witnesses and near of kin
To the high dreams we hold within.

Yet what is left
To us bereft?
Save these remains
Wh ch now the mo h
Will fret, or swifter fire consume?
These inky stains
On his table cloth,
These prints that decked his room,
His throne, this ragged easy chair
This battered pipe, his counsellor
This is the sum and inventory.
No son he left to tell his story.
No gold, no lands, no fame, no book
Yet one of us, his heirs, who took
The impress of his brain and heart,
May gain from Heaven the lucky art
His untold meanings to impart
In words that will not soon decay,
Then gracefully will such one say
"This phrase, dear friend, perhaps is mine
The breath that gave it life was thine."

IN THE WORLD."

[From one of the Oldest and very best Houses in America.]

Please send us TEN gross small and FIVE gross large Vegetable Pulmonary Balsam. This is doubtless the best Cough Medicine in the world. (Signed) ALLEN & CO.
P. S.—These parties have sold this Balsam for over thirty years.

[From one of Boston's most estimable citizens.]
No. 5 Worcester Sq., BOSTON, March 14, 1873.
Messrs CUTLER BROS. & CO.
In ordering another small lot of your invaluable

Vegetable Pulmonary Balsam

I should like to tell you what I know about it, in order that others may have the benefit of my EXPERIENCE.

Since this Balsam first came to my notice, in 1843, I have kept it constantly in the house, never allowing myself to be out of it over night. In all those

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

It has not failed in a single instance in my own case to give the desired relief, and I will say the same in regard to my mother, whose by it as I cannot but think. Hers was a case of Congestion of the Lungs, and although attended by a most skillful Physician, she seemed to fail constantly, so that we despaired of her recovery, when an old friend and neighbor persuaded her to try the Vegetable Pulmonary Balsam. The result was most gratifying, I assure you!

RELIEF WAS IMMEDIATE

and recovery rapid. She is now over 80 years old, and is active and well. Whenever she gets a severe cold, which happens once in a while, she takes thirty to sixty drops, according to the violence of the cough, which has always yielded in a day or two by taking the Balsam only on retiring at night. With it the

is at once subdued, and a good night's sleep secured. I will mention another case, that of a young lady acquaintance, who

BLED AT THE LUNGS

and coughed frightfully, had night sweats and was fearfully reduced. She left Boston for her country home, 150 miles away, as we supposed to die. I sent her a bottle of your Balsam, and soon had the satisfaction to hear that she was much better. She continued taking it for a while and got and is living now, which fact is to be ascribed mainly to the use of the VEGETABLE PULMONARY BALSAM. Very truly yours,

ENTIRELY WELL,

JOHN CAPEN.

As there are many imitations, be careful to get the genuine. Price in large bottles, which are much the cheaper, $1 00; small bottles, old style, 50 cents.

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
